

The Art of Engineering Human Capital Solutions

Drake specializes in human capital engineering working with you to understand your human capital needs and develop solutions to meet your needs. What differentiates us is that our solutions are developed to produce measurable results.

Through the application of people, processes, and technologies, Drake works in partnership with you to solve business problems. The end result – a decrease in your costs, increase in revenues, enhanced shareholder value, and a solution aligned with your strategic vision and intent.

The essence of our successful human capital management program is to fully understand your business as it currently runs and identify your current workflow and top performers. We then optimize our workflow to match the peaks and valleys of your workload, minimizing your permanent staff and utilizing a well-trained and efficient contingent workforce, when and where you need them most.

As Human Capital Engineers, Drake analyzes and then aligns the people and processes in your organization to balance our workforce against your workload to ensure you have:

- The right number of people
- With the right knowledge, skills, and behaviours
- Doing the right things
- In the right way
- With the right tools
- At the right time

We create an end result that has an immediate and sustained effect on the profitability, growth, and value of your organization.

That's the Drake Difference.

It's about measurable results, not just solutions.
